Our biggest concern is the health of the entire UK population.

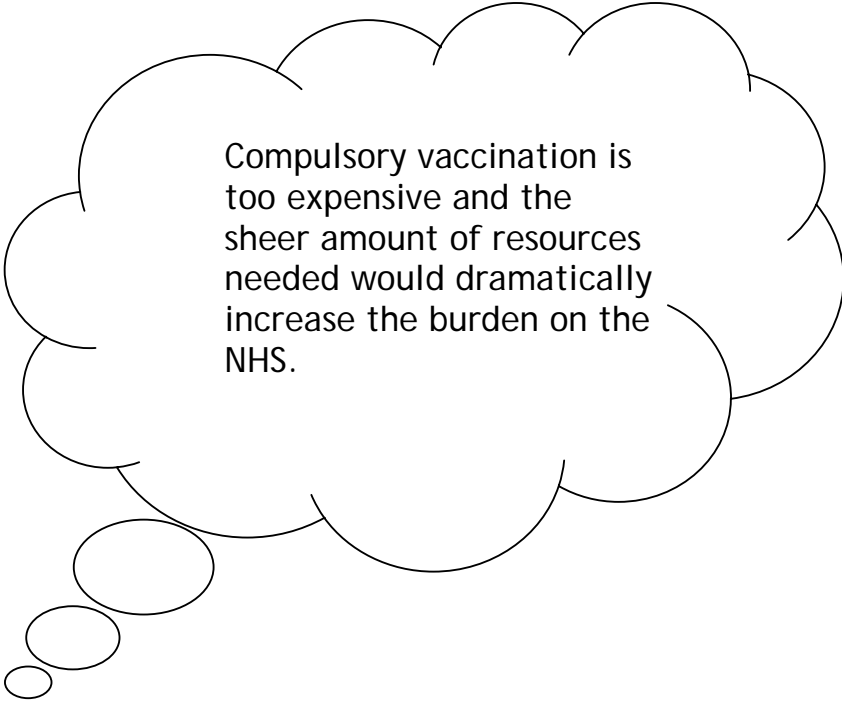

Our aim is to vaccinate 90% of the population, so we can achieve herd immunity and not be threatened by the disease.

Some compulsory vaccination systems have an exemption policy. Why should someone be exempt from compulsory vaccinations when I'm not?

I don't want the vaccinations but have to have them. It's a totally unfair system.

The 'victory over epidemics' was not won by medical science and certainly not by vaccines. The decline has been the result of technical, social and hygiene improvements and especially of improved nutrition. The claim that vaccinations are the cause for the decline of infectious diseases is utter nonsense.
